

Five cool aviation websites you might not know about www.nts.gov -- watch live streaming of accident investigation meetings. Twitter feed, blogs, and updates on all crashes

www.pprune.org -- listen in on the chitchat of professional pilots

<http://www.theatlantic.com/james-fallows/>-- Atlantic writer Jim Fallows, a Cirrus pilot, has written several books about the aviation biz. He writes interesting aviation analysis on this blog fairly often.

www.bydanjohnson.com -- everything you could want to know about LSA, from the leading expert.

<http://www.wired.com/autopia/section/avaiation/> -- occasional posts on aviation technology for the general reader. (NOTE: Yes, that's how they spell it!)

And a few more...

<http://www.socialflight.com/> -- Facebook for pilots. Find local friends to fly with.

<http://imcclubs.cloverpad.org/> -- A fast-growing and popular learning opportunity. Started right here in Norwood and now spreading worldwide.

<http://www.faa.gov/about/initiatives/uas/> -- All you need to know about UAS integration.

And of course...

<http://www.avweb.com/> -- the web's best aviation news site. Visit often, subscribe (it's free!), and send newstips to mgrady@avweb.com. Thanks!
